SNOW STORM PREVENTS JAY PEAK OUTING

Four Inch Fall of Snow Puts Damper Upon Celebration

The enthusiasm for Jay Peak day got a severe chill with the freezing temperature Wednesday and Thursday and the four inch fall of snow last night has without doubt definitely postponed the gathering of the clans for this season. But now that the interest in the extending of the Long Trail has been worked up to the point of going ahead with the work something will undoubtedly come of it in the near future.

THREE INCH FALL OF SNOW BREAKS RECORD

Mercury Down to 18 Degrees Sets October Cold Weather Mark

October is quite a month after all if it does not generally put an end to the activities of the golf enthusiasts and the automobile picnic parties. Christopher Columbus had landed here this year instead of 1492, he would have sent back to Spain for his winter flannels. The records at the Fairbanks Museum show that besides being the coldest October since the record was established, it also has the largest fall of snow for any month during the twenty year period. The total depth of fall of last evening is shown to be three inches, with a water content of fourteen hundredths of an inch, while the temperature went down to 18 degrees. Only one October has shown a trace of snow in ten years and that was last year, and the majority of years for the twenty year period have shown no trace at all.

PARISHIONERS HONOR DR. AND MRS. GRINT

St. Margaret's Guild Entertains for Rector at Parish House

Dr. and Mrs. A. P. Grint were the guests of St. Margaret's guild at a supper given in their honor at St. Andrew's parish house Tuesday night. The Men's club of St. Andrew's was invited and a company of nearly 40 was seated around the long tables. At the conclusion a bouquet of chrysanthemums a gift from the guild was presented to Mrs. Grint by Mrs. Charles Curtis and a similar gift was given to Dr. Grint, from the Men's club, the presentation made by Alexander McCarty. Dr. C. A. Cranston was also called upon to voice the regret felt at the removal of Dr. and Mrs. Grint from St. Johnsburry, and he did so in no uncertain terms, speaking as Mr. McCarty did of their fine work for St. Andrew's parish, and the sorrow felt on all sides over Dr. Grint's resignation.

FROM SCHOOL ROOM TO POULTRY FARM

Gift of $1500 Launches Teacher in New Business

Another Vermont teacher has left the school room after a long period of service and her experience is unique as in her 12 years' continuous work for the children of Vermont she has taught in only two buildings, 20 years in Lyndon and 22 years in St. Johnsburry. Unlike many who lay down their labors after more than two score years at the teacher's desk Miss Ella Wilmarth of Lyndon will engage in a new line of work, and plans are launched for the Wilmarth Poultry Farm. With the characteristic energy that has marked her long years of successful teaching Miss Wilmarth is working out the details of the venture under the supervision of another ex-teacher, Miss Bertha M. Lee of East St. Johnsburry who has found pleasure and profit in this line of work, and who is a recognized authority in all matters pertaining to the poultry business.

Richard Husband Exonerated from Blame in Fatal Auto Accident

District of Columbia authorities have fully exonerated Richard F. Husband, son of the Commissioner General of Immigration, and have absolved him of any blame in the automobile accident which cost the life of a lad named Osborne. Husband, it appears, was driving along the Conduit Road, which leads from Washington to Great Falls, on the Maryland side of the Potomac, and was accompanied by his mother and another woman and two children. He had slowed down his car to a moderate pace and was driving carefully so as to take no chances with a number of school children returning from school. The Osborne boy was riding his bicycle along the highway, when one of the children in the road made as if to throw something at him, so that he suddenly switched his wheel to one side and ran directly in front of the Husband machine. He was knocked from the wheel and badly injured. Husband stopped his car instantly and picking up the boy.

Marquis Curzon and Earl of Derby Will Take Positions

Trial Board Considers Case of Patrolman James White

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 20.—Patrolman James White of Station 1, who talked with Lyle Bourbeau and George P. Mills on a street corner here, following their sensational hold-up of Wilton J. Warner at West Danville, Vt., was brought before the police trial board yesterday afternoon and charged with neglect of duty. It is said that orders were read at police headquarters last Saturday morning, demanding the arrest of Bourbeau and Mills, but Patrolman White for some unknown reason failed to take the bandits into custody.

Bourbeau and Mills, at the time Patrolman White was chatting with them, were wanted in three cities for grand larceny and robbery. This pair of bandits together with Edmund McGouty were sought for plundering a store at Granby, P. Q., where they had taken a large quantity of costly ladies clothing. They were also wanted for the theft of a Cadillac car in Fitchburg and for highway robbery and larceny of a Lincoln coupe at West Danville, Vt.

Chief of Police, George B. Hill heard the charges against Patrolman White, who then told his own story. The trial board, consisting of Captains Luke J. Dillon, William A. Condy and Daniel A. McLaughlin, took Patrolman White's story under consideration. They will later render a report to Chief Hill. The latter will give the results of his findings to Mayor Sullivan who will take whatever action circumstances seem to dictate.

Wrote Checks and Goes to Prison

Roscoe Sargent, age 35, of McIndoes, a laborer, wasn't getting rich fast enough, so he got a check book and proceeded to fulfill his wants. He went over to Ames Street's store, and nonchalantly wrote off a check for $56 and signed his name L. E. Collins.

Not thinking that he had enough he wrote another for the same amount, put on the same "John Henry" and went into John Prevost's to pay a little bill he had there. Scott and Prevost just out of curiosity called up the bank and inquired if such a man had an account there, learning that he had not, they connected with the police station and described him to officer Wallace who picked the would-be forger up and brought him before Judge Harry Blodgett. He had enough of the money in his possession so that Mr. Scott received all that he gave him, but thirty cents and Mrs. Prevost all but ninety-eight, and both are satisfied to get out of it with that mark down. Before Judge Blodgett he pleaded guilty and was given not less than one year or more than three at the house of correction.

FRANK GREENE REPLIES TO FARM PAPER

Explains Vote On Potash Tariff to Farm Bureau

Hon. Frank L. Greene, nominee of the Republican party for United States Senator, gave a ringing defense of his vote against the potash schedule in the tariff bill when speaking yesterday in St. Albans before the annual meeting of the Franklin County Farm Bureau. Mr. Greene had been vigorously attacked for this vote by a well-known farm publication with a large circulation in Vermont.

Mr. Greene said he did not appear on the program as a candidate for election next month, but as a public servant already in office who had been asked by the president of the County Farm Bureau to explain why he voted for a duty on Potash when the Tariff bill was going through its final stages at the last session of Congress. He was glad to respond to the courteous invitation and felt that it was his duty to give an account of his stewardship at any time.

He had read the highly sensational article of a well-known agricultural paper circulating in New England in which the majority of the New England members of the House of Representatives, including himself, were savagely denounced as enemies to the farmers and the people generally because of their attitude toward this matter and their record and votes upon it. He said the picture and impressions set out by that periodical were wholly misleading as to the importance of the affair of the tariff and was evidently a bit of propaganda of a particularly vicious character, having for its animus the desire to abuse somebody publicly and make a great fuss about it for itself as the only genuine "friend of the farmer."

Mr. Greene said that the proposition to put Potash on the free list was carried in these last days simply by a shrewd Democratic trick. There was opposition to a part of the Dye schedule in the bill known as the "Iye Embargo," although it was not actually an embargo at all. Under the rules of the House, just before a final vote is taken on such measures or propositions, those opposed to the bill as a whole are permitted to offer what is known as a motion to recommit, which gives them a chance to put up some amendment of importance they would like to see adopted. The Democratic leaders cleverly made up a composite motion that included both the "Dye Embargo" and "free Potash." These two things were joined together like Siamese twins in the one motion, to be voted up or down with one vote. A member might be for one and against the other, but he had but one vote and he must make up his mind which way it would go. Anybody can see the cleverness of this Democratic trick. A minority for the Iye Embargo repeat (Continued on page six)

ISSUE PASSES FOR LIQUOR IN MORRISVILLE

Arrest of Man Driving Car Leads Police to "Ticket" Works

A scheme by which intoxicating liquor is sold to the select who possess a ticket with the initials "A. J. R." written on it, has been unearthed by the authorities in Morrisville who believe they are on the scent of an elaborate system for handling liquor. Tony Rickerbeck of Morrisville is in the jail at Hyde Park on a charge of selling and two Stow men, Luther Wright and Harry Lyman are also locked up on charges which hold them as material witnesses.

The discovery of the scheme grows out of the accident Tuesday in which Lyman and Wright were involved. State's Attorney W. E. Tracy issued a warrant for the arrest of Wright on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Lyman was held on a charge of intoxication.

Under the investigation of Mr. Tracy Wright, who at first denied he had been drinking, confessed that he had bought a quart of whiskey in Morrisville and displayed his "pass" which was the sign that he was "all right" to sell. He told of the place where he secured the liquor and was prevailed on to try to get some more, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff E. E. Holmes he went to the house of Rickerbeck and on displaying his "pass" had no difficulty in buying another quart. This was secured as evidence and Rickerbeck was arrested. His place was searched but the authorities were unsuccessful in finding anything.

The authorities believe that with the discovery of Rickerbeck's place they have found one of the principal sources of booze which has been rather freely dealt with in the past.
